June 3, 2020

Our Third International IVAN Online-Zoom™ Meeting, Wednesday June 10th, 2020 at 12:00 Noon EDT.

“Keeping Your NMR Lab Safe in the COVID World”
Discuss what is working or not in your re-opened lab.

On Wednesday June 10th the IVAN NMR group will host a third online-Zoom™ meeting about the COVID pandemic. We will follow up with further discussion of what is actually happening in our re-opened labs. Our meeting on May 20th was a great success with nearly 140 participants. Join us again for further discussion!

This time both Ken Knott of Virginia Tech and Dean Olson of University of Illinois Urbana/Champaign will lead the discussion. Ken has posted his summary about COVID planning to AMMRL and a link to the full recording of the last meeting can be found at <http://www.ivanmr.com>. We are also beginning to assemble some other documents at the IVAN web site.

This invitation goes out to all IVAN members, AMMRL members and all other interested NMR users across the world. The meeting time continues to be Noon EDT (GMT -4).

To attend, click on the link below to register with your name and email. After registration, you will receive an immediate reply with the link to the meeting itself. Click that link on Wednesday June 10th to join us. Note that this invitation to register can be passed on to anyone by email, but the meeting link you receive is specific to you.

Our goal continues to be to make our online platform regularly available to NMR users for discussions, research presentations and tutorial workshops. If you are not already an IVAN member consider joining at the website, <http://www.ivanmr.com>, so as to receive future meeting announcements directly. IVAN membership is free of charge and open to all interested NMR users.
